come, Bat-fans, to the return of the letters pagel can't wait to hear your thoughts on BATMAN, we invite you all to write in and ask us questions et us know what you think of the series! We're ng things off with a letter about Dick Grayson and solution to the previous costume...

r Mike & Janelle, come back, letter pages! I've been reading DC almost 25 years now, and it's great to have this e back.

ant to applaud DC for daring to keep Dick reson as Batman. Dick Grayson has been my rite character ever since reted having an interest in serieroes, mostly because seem to have grown up ther. I do hope that when makes the decision to regrayson to the Nightwing makes the decision to re-Grayson to the Nightwing ona, it's done with an eye ords keeping his popularity is current height! up the great work!

Will Boston, MA

ks for trusting us with the path Dick Grayson's travel-n, Will! We're happy to hear hitting the spot for longtime son fans like yourself. But said we're gonna see Dick up the Nightwing identity n? Believe us, there's a maslan that's slowly unfolding ving Dick's suit and his role otham City, and as the months pass, those plans ecome more and more evident. Stay tuned!

finished up BATMAN #706, and wow. Just wow. way Tony Daniel seasons his issues with chars that are creatively old and new at the same makes for an interesting read. Each character heir own voice and style, and I can't wait to see happens next issue.

eep it up Mr. Daniel, and Bat-editors and fellow

You did it, Matthew – you got printed! to hear you're enjoying Tony's run! We fans ourselves, especially when it comes characters he's introducing and reviving to Sensei to Catgirl and beyond, it's a the comes up with next.

Speaking of next, follow this issue's str. es of RED ROBIN #22 and then GOTH #22 before the conclusion right back

Dear Mike & Janelle, Just a quick comment to comme putting togeth MAN line in n get over how man comics th As a major Wayne Batma over how go ring Dick G The writing Grant Morr and now ex David Finch er some m Finch, Yani on books t best artwo Here's a for some just don't while!!

Hey, Jay – thanks for the thai to make the Batman fami there's a flavor for every ty matter which way your to something going on in G a bang for your buck. We mystery, science fiction, di monsters, psychos - the li of that range.

Dear Batgroup, I've been a longtime f I'd like to see him ex ent heroes and v Dear DC Nation...

I was watching an old sitcom really late one night last week and the plot involved one of the characters getting tons and tons of fan mail. They were piling duffel bags of mail up to the ceiling in the kitchen and there was still more coming in literally by the truckload. I started laughing because I imagined my office looking very similar if all of the letters you guys have sent into our new letters columns weren't coming in by regular mail AND electronically. My point (besides that I stay up too late watching TV) is that our fans have made our lettercolumns a huge success beyond anything we could have hoped. You loyal DC Nation readers are writing in with all kinds of questions, observations, jokes and complaints...and it's awesome to see the passion you all have for our books, our talent and our characters. So I can't thank you guys enough – BUT – we're not done. There are still a lot of you out there who haven't written in, and even if you have written in, there is no reason to stop at one letter. And if you really love a book that you think isn't getting enough attention, you need to write in and say why more people should be reading. Please keep it going, DC Nation! I promise you that we read every single letter that we get, so your voice will be heard Before you run off to start your letter, let me just go over a few hints that will help increase your odds of getting it printed. First of all, please remember to put your name and city because without this information we won't print your letter. And fake names will also result in our not running your question. So unless you can prove that your legal name is Solomon Grundy, I'm not printing your Batman question. Also - please be as clear as you can when you write in. We'd love to respond, but that's kind of difficult if we're not sure what exactly we're supposed to be responding to. And finally to Nick from New York who wrote in more than once to simply say "Nice" about Superman, I'd like to respond, "Sweet, dude. Thanks!" All the info you need is below. We look forward to hearing from you soon.

Be seeing you -lan Sattler, DC Comics
